Coming to Jaén (Spain)

Coming to Jaén (Spain)

World Capital of Olive Culture, Iberian Culture Legacy, Renaissance Heritage Site, and Natural Spaces and Parks

Jaén (pop. over 114,000), a young, open city, located in southern Spain and in the heart of Andalusia. Jaén is also a province with a unique natural, historical, artistic and cultural heritage; meeting point for people and cultures that have marked and shaped the character of its people who have, however, always kept their own particular Andalusian identity.

A land of transition and frontier, Jaén has been cherished by history. It was one of the most important Iberian settlements of the Peninsula and played a remarkable role in the Andalusian era, firmly establishing its influence during the Renaissance and the Enlightenment. Its valuable historical heritage includes the cathedral, by Andrés de Vandelvira, an Andalusian renaissance treasure, as well as the Arab Baths and Santa Catalina Castle. Living examples of those centuries are also Úbeda and Baeza, two major Renaissance towns, both declared World Heritage Sites by the UNESCO, and located only a few kilometres away from Jaén. Linares is the second most populous city in the province of Jaén. Its mining past and its archaeological legacy have marked the cosmopolitan character of this remarkable city, which has always been open to trade.

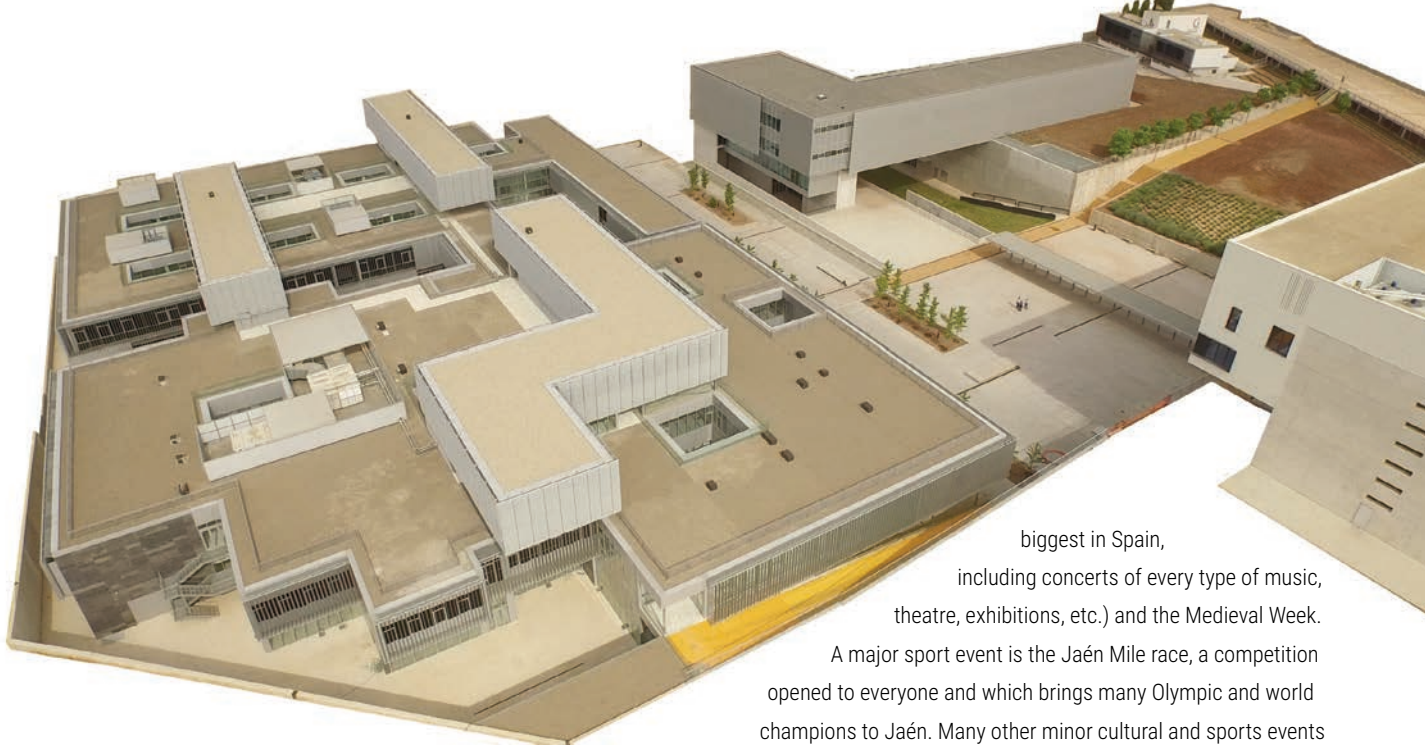

Jaén has the largest area of the protected natural sites of Spain (3,042 km²), including four Parks: Parque Natural Sierra de Andújar, Sierra Mágina, Despeñaperros and Parque Natural de Sierra de Cazorla, Segura y las Villas. The latter is considered to be the most significant protected natural reserve in Spain and the second largest in Europe, classified as a Biosphere Reserve. Furthermore, there are three natural places, two nature reserves, natural monuments and two PeriUrban Parks.

The world-famous extra virgin olive oil is made in Jaén. Beyond its geographical borders, oil is one of the mainstays of the Mediterranean diet, Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity, and, today, one of the most precious foods in the kitchens of the world.

Hospitable at any time of the year, quiet and well communicated at the same time, full of life and remembrance, the towns composing the province of Jaén offer the visitor a mild winter and hot summer weather, an unexpected personality and an endless catalogue of works of art. Its approach means to get into a network of churches, palaces, large fortified towers, fountains, and many more. In addition, a tremendously active and exciting student and night life (so typical of Andalusia) combine a great choice of modern discos and pubs with traditional Andalusian and Spanish fiestas. The liveliest examples of popular fun include the Semana Santa (the Holy Week in April), the Feria (the Jiennense Fair in October and June), and the Carnaval (the Carnival in February).

Every year, many important cultural and sport events take place in the province. One of the most significant ones is the Chess Competition of Linares, which is the most prestigious of its kind among the Western countries. Other notable events are the Summer Courses at the University of Baeza, the International Piano Competition of Jaén, the Autumn Festival (one of the biggest in Spain,

including concerts of every type of music,
theatre, exhibitions, etc.) and the Medieval Week.

A major sport event is the Jaén Mile race, a competition opened to everyone and which brings many Olympic and world champions to Jaén. Many other minor cultural and sports events contribute to making the stay in Jaén exciting and unforgettable.

How to Get to Jaén

Jaén can be reached using the conventional means of transport, i.e., by train and by car or coach. The last one is a very interesting way of getting to know Jaén and the areas around it due to the excellent road network connecting our city with most of the other important Andalusian and Spanish cities, with a direct highway to Madrid.

There are also four airports, which are rather close to the capital of the province (Granada, Málaga, Seville and Córdoba). This unique situation makes the arrival in Jaén quite an easy task, by using a combination of aerial and ground-based means of transportation.

Academic Calendar

The academic year is divided into two semesters and three examination periods:

First semester: from the beginning of September to the end of December

First examination period: from the beginning to the end of January

Second semester: from the end of January to mid-May

Given the requirements of the EHEA, the University of Jaén has implemented new tasks within the Plan for Teaching Innovation and Teacher Education, such as the promotion of multilingualism, creating teaching materials using ICT, training of trainers, dissemination actions aimed at high school counsellors and professionals and call for innovative teaching mobility, among others.

Students are assessed through final exams in January, in the case of one-semester courses; or in May, in the case of courses that run throughout the academic year (or one semester courses belonging to the second semester). Students who do not pass the exams are able to re-sit them in June/July. In some cases, professors may choose to set various evaluative activities (exams, projects, etc.) throughout the year that, if successfully completed, can replace the final exam.
